

COALITION FOR A COAL-FREE LOS ANGELES

Coal-fired power plants are responsible for nearly one third of the United States' global warming pollution. According to the Clean Air Task force, pollution from coal-fired power plants is responsible for 13,200 deaths, 20,000 heart attacks, 217,600 asthma attacks, and 1,627,800 lost work days a year. The rising cost of coal-fired power poses a financial risk to customers and is standing in the way of the clean energy that Angelenos want— energy that could create thousands of local jobs during this recession.

As part of the Los Angeles community, I am extremely concerned that our city currently gets 39% of its electricity from coal-fired plants in Arizona and Utah; more of our power comes from coal than any other energy source. Transitioning away from coal and prioritizing clean energy and energy efficiency will ensure that our energy bills stabilize and protect customers against rate increases.

Los Angeles should be a national leader on climate change and clean energy. It's time to move the largest municipally owned utility company in the country, Los Angeles Department Water and Power (LADWP), off of coal-fired power. I/We call on the Los Angeles City Council to support a plan that will....

- Transition Los Angeles off of coal-fired power by 2020
- Create meaningful, environmentally responsible economic opportunities through investments in renewable energy and energy efficiency programs, with a goal of 20% energy savings and 40% renewable energy standard by 2020.
